Department of Political Science

The Department of Political Science began its academic journey alongside the establishment of Buniadpur Mahavidyalaya in 2007, initially offering General (Pass) courses under the affiliation of the University of North Bengal. Following the college's transition to the University of Gour Banga, Political Science was upgraded to a full-fledged Honours programme, marking a significant step forward for the department. Over the years, the department has made consistent progress, both academically and administratively, reflected in the steady improvement in student performance and engagement. In the subsequent years, Mr. Satya Priya Mitra and Mr. Mohobub Alam were both elevated to the position of SACT-II and continue to contribute actively to the department's academic life.

At present, the department is led by Prof. Dr. Situ Saikh, under whose Headship the department continues to thrive. With a vision to equip students with critical perspectives on politics, society, and governance, the Department of Political Science remains committed to academic excellence and to preparing students for meaningful careers in politics & other spheres.

Human Rights in Conflict Zones – A Brief Note

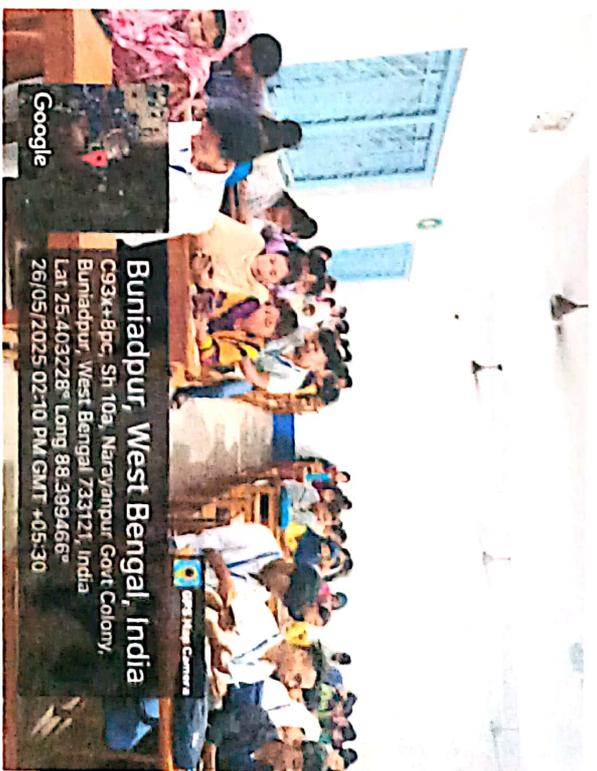

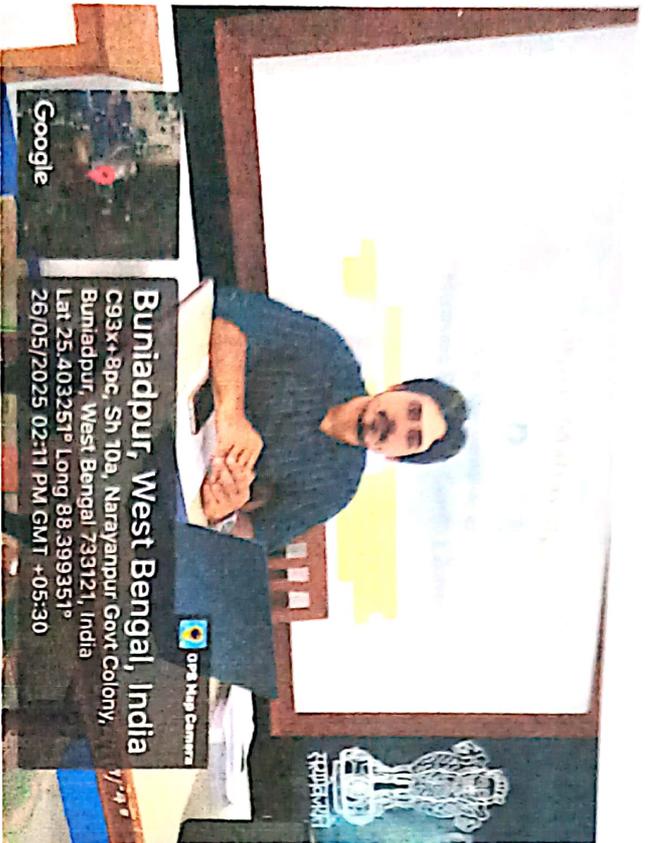

Conflict zones—areas affected by war, civil unrest, insurgency, or occupation—pose some of the gravest challenges to the protection of human rights. In such environments, basic human rights like the right to life, freedom from torture, freedom of movement, access to healthcare, and education are often systematically violated.

Key concerns include:

- Targeting of civilians and non-combatants
- Use of sexual violence as a weapon of war
- Forced displacement and refugee crises
- Suppression of freedom of speech and press
- Denial of humanitarian access

Both state and non-state actors may perpetrate violations. In many cases, international humanitarian law (IHL), including the Geneva Conventions, is ignored. Accountability mechanisms—such as international tribunals or UN investigations—often face political and logistical hurdles.

Understanding human rights in these zones is crucial for peace-building, post-conflict reconstruction, and transitional justice. This topic urges scholars, policy-makers, and citizens alike to advocate for global human dignity, justice, and the rule of law even in the most volatile contexts.
